

the day passed as we laughed at the play being performed by the class, seven young women. BONG!! The end of the day bell struck two and the girls left with smiles on their faces. Laughing to myself, I drove home tired, but happy. Teaching really wasn't hard at all!

My friend is not doing his homework. I keep on telling him to do his homework, but all he does is stick his face to the T.V. while playing video games. My friend said to me to give him 3 good reasons why he should do his homework. So I told him and I will be telling you too. Do you want to move out? Well if you do then you have to do your homework. Your homework is your grade and you need a good grade to pass your grade level. You are not going to pass if you get an F in every subject. Teachers don't give you homework just because they're mean, they give it to you as a review so you can pass your grade level. Also if you want a good job then you have to have good grades and to make good grades you need to do your homework. People want other people to work for them that are skilled. If you don't do your homework then you will lack knowledge. People will think you're not smart because you don't do your homework. So do your homework to become knowledgeable. After I finished, my friend rushed all the way home to do his homework, so I guess I convinced him. So, remember do your homework.

"So Cool"! Let me explain my favorite subject. My favorite subject is reading. I enjoy reading because it teaches me life skills like: How to sound out really big words. It's my favorite subject because I can have fun with it. I can make up funny stories, I can read funny stories, and I can tell funny stories. I can also write stories about my bio and I can check out books at my local library. I also can go to Wal-Mart and buy some books. Plus, if I was at Wal-Mart I could go in the girl section and I could read the words on the toys and the prices. So now you know my favorite subject. Here's a tip. Read, Read, and Read!

BLACK HISTORY FACTS

Elijah McCoy (1843 - 1929) invented an automatic lubricator for oiling steam engines in 1872. The term "the real McCoy" is believed to be a reference about the reliability of Elijah McCoy's invention.

Garrett Augustus Morgan (1877 - 1963) invented, among many other things, a 3-way automatic stop sign, which he sold to General Electric. It was used in the U.S. until the 3-light traffic sign was developed.

Let me begin telling my story about my favorite subject. First of all, my favorite subject is math so that's what I'll be talking about. My favorite subject is math because I do all kinds of problems. My favorite part about math is multiplication. Multiplication is something I can do any time. Math is one of the best subjects and it's easy. You can add, subtract, multiply, and do division. Okay now let's fast forward to the next reason. My other reason I enjoy math so much is because I get to have fun while doing it. I like numbers. I like numbers because I can do many things with them. I can build graphs or bar lines. Graphs are used to show pictures and information. Now let's talk about subtraction. Subtraction is important and it's something you always should know so no one can cheat you. Say that you are in a store and you don't know how to subtract they can cheat you out of your money. That's why you should know your math and always pay attention in class.

I am going to tell you some important things about some academic subjects. One important academic subject is math. Math is important because when you get a job and you don't know how to multiply people will cheat you out of your money. Reading is important because when you grow up and start to get bills that come in the mail you won't know what they are because you can't read. Science is important because if you want to be a scientist and you don't know what to do you could give people the wrong information. This is why math, reading, and science are important.
