Have you ever read a good book then you wanted to write one? Today is your lucky day! Practicing your handwriting is very important. You want people to read your work, and as their reading and their thinking but, your handwriting is sloppy their going to say, "oh, their work is sloppy, I can't read this they need to practice their writing." Then you end up sad wondering why you need to practice. So always practice your handwriting. The author's purpose is telling you what kind of story this is. Say I write a fiction that means I wrote something not true. So when your reading a story, think in your mind what kind of story this is. Hey say you want to write a letter, but you don't know how to do the envelope. So you will put your information in the right corner. And put that person information in the left side and put were you live in the middle. So that how you write a letter. That covers it, that's what I like to do.

In school you have many subjects such as math, reading, and science too. Every one has a favorite and a least favorite subject. I love math, but I don't like social studies. Math is a very good subject in my opinion because it is easy and if it is hard you would probably catch on fast. Math is better than reading, but if you think reading is better than math than that means you are crazy! Reading would be my third favorite. About half the people in the world like to read. I know I do most of the time. Reading can be fun, but if it is big than it could be boring. That's reading if you are reading this. Science is my second favorite because if you are still in school your science class may do experiments that are cool and fun. Science could be the most dangerous subject in school. You must be really careful. So, I know that lots of people dislike this subject and love that subject. I know that people love math or reading. People out there please do not think mine or your opinion on what subject is better. If you like the math just like me than okay, but if you don't than don't copy me!
